

DR. BABASAHEB AMBEDKAR

WRITINGS AND SPEECHES

VOLUME 1

Compiled by Vasant Moon

Published by Education Department, Government of Maharashtra

Dr. Ambedkar Foundation, New Delhi

CASTES IN INDIA

Their Mechanism, Genesis and Development (1916)

Many students of Caste have approached the problem from the point of view of the origin of Caste. I have deliberately esch

The population of the Punjab, Bengal and Madras may differ physically, but culturally they have a fundamental unity. It is thi

ANNIHILATION OF CASTE (1936)

Section I: The Need for Social Reform

Political reform cannot take precedence over social reform. The emancipation of the mind and the soul must precede any other reform.

Caste is not merely a division of labour, it is also a division of labourers. Civilized society requires division of labour, but in a manner that does not create artificial barriers between different groups of people.

MAHARASHTRA AS A LINGUISTIC PROVINCE (1948)

The demand for Linguistic Provinces is based on sound administrative and democratic principles. A democratic state requires

The problem of linguistic provinces must be solved with due regard to national unity, administrative convenience, and financial

APPENDIX: STATISTICAL EXHIBITS

Table 1: Population and Representation Ratios

Division	Area (Sq Mi)	Population	Literacy (%)
Central Division	38,420	11,240,000	14.2
Northern Division	24,180	7,890,000	16.8
Southern Division	29,750	8,450,000	12.5